

Descriptions for Waterway and Wetland Permit search fields

Region – DNR administrative regions. See map at <http://www.dnr.state.wi.us/org/caer/cs/ServiceCenter/SSbyRegion.html> to identify counties in each region. Leaving this field blank searches data statewide.

County – County in which project is located.

Year – Year in which permit was applied for.

Docket number – Identification number for agency use.

Minor civil division – City, village or town in which a project is located.

Applicant – Typically the property owner who is seeking permission to alter a waterway or wetland.

Agent – Typically a contractor or consultant working on behalf of an applicant.

Location – The location of the proposed project. Most property deeds include the public land system location. Or use a county plat book available from map services or at government offices.

Waterway – Named or unnamed lakes, stream or wetlands.

Activity – If you are unfamiliar with waterway structures or alterations, see the Waterway & Wetland Permits page (<http://www.dnr.state.wi.us/org/water/fhp/waterway/>) and use the menu to learn about the activities.

Application received date – The date the application is received at the DNR office.

Decision – Whether the structure or alteration is approved, denied or the application is withdrawn.

Date – The date the Department makes a decision on the application.

Wetland – This field indicates whether the project was in or had impacts on wetlands. If you need a definition of wetlands or more information, see the Waterway & Wetland Permits page at <http://www.dnr.state.wi.us/org/water/fhp/waterway/>.
